Sketches of Colonial Days. MOUNT VERNON.

Thors was presented to the Ladies' Mt. Vernon Association a few weeks ago by Mr. Col. John Washington, which included the poise, and its wonderful powers will quickly dis-poisel and its wonderful powers will quickly dis-poisel dealt. Yourstruly, W. M. PBOPST. lands between the waters of Dogue creek Health is Wealth I and Little Hunting creek, from the Podouble ditches between the Washington and the Mason property. The original grant to Spencer and Washington was in 1674; the division referred to above was between Col. Washington and the beirs of Col. Spencer into two equal parts, Spencer taking the western part lying on Dogue creek, which was then called the "Ipsawassen," and Wa hington retaining the eastern portion of Little Hunting creek which contained the site of Mout Verson. The Spen-cer portion appears to have passed entirely out of the hands of that family in the course of next fifty years, some of it having been bought by Lawrence and the residue by George Washington, so that it all came back to the Washington family again. From this western portion of the Mount Vernon estate lying in the Dogue run or Ipsawassen valley George Washington was desirious of securing some high land for a building site on that part of it, so he bought a part of what was called the Chapel lands or Traverses' whereby he secured "Grey's Heights." The following letter from Gen. Washington to his nephew Lawrence will be of interest in connection; with the above:

MT. VERNON, Sept. 20, 1799. Dear Sir: From the moment Mrs. Wash-logion and myself adopted the two youngest children of Mr. Cuette, it became my in-tention (if they survive me and conduct themselves to my satisfaction) to consider them in my will when I was about to make a distribution of my property. This debut is strengthened by the connexion which one of them bas formed with my family. The expense at which I live and the unproductiveness of my estate together, will admit of no diminution of income while I remain in my present situation; on the contrary were it not for occasional supplies of money in payment for lands sold within the last four or five years to the amount of upwards of fifty thousand dollars, I should not us able to support the former without involving myself in debt and difficulties. But as it has been understood from expressions dropped from Nelly Custis, now your wife, that it is the wish of you both to settle in this neighborhood, contiguous to her friends, and as it would be inexpedient as well as expensive for you to make a purchase of land when a measure which is in contemplation would place you on more eligible ground, I shall inform you that in the will which I have by me, and have i tion to alter, that part of my Mt. Vernon tract which lies northwest of the public road leading from the Gum Spring and Colobester (from a certain point which I have marked) containing about two thousand acres of land with the Dogue run farm, mill and distillery, Gray's Heights, &c., is bequeathed to you and her jointly, if you income to build on it, and few better slices for a house than Gray's hill and that range are to be found in this country or elsewhere. You may also bave what is properly

Dogue run farm, the mill and distillery, on s just and equitable rent, as also the hands belonging thereto on a reasonable hire, either next year or the year following, it being necessary, in my opinion, that a young man should have object of employment. Idleness is disreputable under any olrcumstances -productive of no good even when unac-companied with vicious habits-and you might commence building as soon as you please, during the progress of which Mount

Vernon might be made your home.
You may conceive that building before you have an absolute title to the land is bazardous. To obviate this I shall only remark that it is not likely that any occur rence will happen or any change take place that would alter my intention (if the conduct of yourself and wife is such as to merit a continuance of it). But, be this as it may, that you may proceed on sure ground with your buildings, I will agree, and this letter shall bear evidence of it, that if thereafter I should find cause to make any other disposition of the property here mentioned, I will pay the actual cost of such buildings to you or yours.

Although I have not the most distant idea that any event will happen that could effect a change in my present determination, nor any susploton that you or Nelly would conduct yourselves in such a manner as to incur my serious displeasure, yet at the same time that I am inclined to do justice to oth-ers it behooves me to take care of myself by keeping the staff in my own hands. That you may have a more perfect idea of the landed property I have bequeathed to you and Nelly in my will I transmit a plan of it, every part of which is correctly laid down and accurately measured, showing the numher of fields, lots, meadows, waste lands, etc., with the contents and relative situation of each, all of which, except the Mill swamp, (which has never been considered a part Dogue run farm and is retained merely for the purpose of putting it in a better state of improvement,) you may have on the terms mentioned. With every kind wish for you and Nelly in which your aunt who has been and is very much indisposed unites, I re main your sffectionate uncle

GEO. WASHINGTON.

G.

As Washington died, in less than three months after the above letter was written. Lawrence Lewis then came into full possession of the property referred to, and built "Woodlawn Mansion" on "Gray's Height" as recommended in 1805 In 1846, the map or plan referred to in the foregoing letter was presented to the father of the writer, by Lorenzo Lewis, son of Lawrence Lewis, upon the occasion of the purchase of the
